Planned before the fall of Lehman Brothers, the conference from which this publication derives was held as the effects of global and national economic collapse initially manifested. To mark the 20th Anniversary of its founding by Mary Robinson, the Irish Centre for European Law assembled an array of distinguished commentators to participate in three panels addressing aspects of the interaction of European Law with the corporate world. The ensuing papers and speeches provide a rare blend of expertise delivered at a moment of great change, both in terms of the Treaties and the economic environment.
